DOCUMENTARY GATHERS COMMUNITY AROUND INCLUSIVE ARTS IN (CITY, TOWN)

(CITY, STATE) (DATE)–

A NEW KIND OF LISTENING proves that a small community arts project has the power to transform lives. The documentary film will play one night only – DAY, DATE, TIME – at VENUE, CITY, ADDRESS. The event is free and open to the public. The space is wheelchair accessible and the film is subtitled.

ANKL tells the story of Chris Mueller-Medlicott, a young man with cerebral palsy who was mislabeled “profoundly mentally retarded” because he could not speak. Chris breaks through into stunning self-expression in this moving and inspiring film. The hour-long documentary, by Durham filmmaker Kenny Dalsheimer, takes viewers inside the creative work of the Community Inclusive Theater Group, as local cast members – some with disabilities – create and perform an original stage piece.
